Train at Washington Street Grade Cause of Terrible Affair

Mrs. Fred Stephens, one of Indiana Harbor's most prominent citizens, with her ten year old daughter, Ruth, were almost instantly killed last evening about eight thirty when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a fast Pennsylvania mail train at the Cline avenue crossing in Indiana Harbor, Mr. Stephens who was driving the machine was knocked unconclous and was taken to the hospital but suffered no serious injuries.

The family were returning from Gary at the time of the accident and apparently intended to drive into Indiana Herbor by way of Guthrie st. Just before reaching Guthrie street it is necessary to cross the Pennsylvania tracks and as the automobile drove ipon the tracks it was struck by a fast mail train going west. How Mr. Stephens failed to notice the approaching train is something that friends can not understand since the crossing is open on both sides and a clear view of the track for a considerable distance is obtainable. At the hour also, it was hardly dark enough to hinder the view.
